Visit to Exeter University

I had the pleasure of taking a group of Year 12 students who are currently studying the Extended Project Qualification (EPQ) to Exeter University.

The EPQ is studied over the two years in Sixth Form and involves studying the methods and disciplines of research resulting in the students research their own title that has been agreed with their tutor - Ms Pavey.

The qualification is held in high regard by Universities when applying for their degree courses and teaches the students many transferable skills that they will use at University or within the workplace. The students this year have circulated shortly with the overall aim of informing students in more detail about life as a post-16 student, what HCC Sixth Form has to offer them and for the students to attend lessons in the subjects they are considering choosing.

In addition to day time activities for the students, a parents' information evening is being held on Monday, 10th July starting at 6pm to give key information about post-16 education.

More information will follow in the next few weeks but please contact me at the school if you have any initial queries.

an amazing range of titles that have been approved for them to continue researching including "How can metamaterials be used to achieve invisibility and how can this be implemented in the medical field?"; "In the most recent Quaternary period how did the topography of the glacial landscape affect the distinctive landforms of glacial erosion" to "Focusing on the age-group 11-16 years, what are young people's perceptions of mental health conditions?"

Today's visit allowed the students to visit and use the University library as well as have lectures from the staff on research methodologies and how to plan their research effectively. We also had a brief tour of this beautiful campus in the wonderful weather. Our continuing links with local Universities like Exeter are a valuable resource to our post-16 students at HCC to both inspire students towards the Higher Education sector and to give personal interactive subject sessions like today that complement their studies with us. A very enjoyable day had by all and thank you to Ms Pavey for organising the event.
